Mrs. E. W. Starks

At the family home in this city last Monday the spirit of Mrs. Vivian Starks, wife of E. W. Starks, departed into the great after-world.

Deceased was born in Murray, Kentucky, three score years ago and was twice married. Her first marriage was to Richard Creek to whom she was married when but 16 years of age, and from this union are two children living, Mrs. Chas. Starks and Charlie Creek, both of this city. After the death of her first husband she was married in 1899 to E. W. Starks who survives her and to this union one child survives, Miss Edna Starks.

Early in life, then Miss Vivian Stephenson, united with the Baptist church and she remained true to its faith and its teachings to the end, being regular in her attendance at church functions and earnest in every duty that came her way. The whole character of the deceased was summed up in one sentence by one near and dear to her, that sentence "Nothing that could be said of her and her life could be too good."

Besides the children and husband, deceased leaves an aged invalid mother, three sisters, Mrs. Curd, Mrs. Treva, then, Mrs. Caine, and two brothers, Sam and Bob Stephenson.

Funeral services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. Maer, of Jackson, and interment was in Somerville Cemetery Tuesday afternoon.

Crazy Times

Strike, and the world strikes with you; work and you work alone; your souls are ablaze with a bolshevik craze, the wildest that ever was known. Groan, and there'll be a chorus, snile, and you make no hit; for we've grown long hair and we preach despair, and show you a dully fit. Spend, and the gang will cheer you, save, and you have no friends; for we throw our backs to the birds and ducks, and borrow from all who will lend. Knock, and you'll be a winner, boost, and you will be a frost; for the old sane ways of the pre-war days, are now from the program lost. Strike and the world strikes with you work, and you work alone; for we'd rather yell and keep raising Hannibal, Mo., than strive for an honest bone. Rant and you are a leader, toil, and you are a nut; 'twas a bitter day when we pulled away from the old time workday rut. Wait, and there'll be a blowup, watch, and you'll see a slump; and the fads and crimes of these crazy times will go to the nation's dump.

Reeder-Ivy

A pretty home wedding was solemnized Wednesday evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Reames when their sister, Olive Cunningham Ivy, became the bride of Mr. Robert William Reeder, the Rev. O. W. Wardlaw officiating.

The living room and parlor were effectively decorated with ferns, amilax and pink sweet peas, Garlands of amilax tied with pink and white tulle were arranged over the door ways and French baskets of sweet peas and ferns were placed on pedestals on both sides of an improvised altar and on the mantels, which were banked with green foliage.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Fontaine T. Ivy, of Hickory Withe, was gownned in a French robe of embroidered crepe with which she wore a picture hat of white georgette and plumes. She carried a snower bouquet of brides roses and valley lilies.

Little Miss Olivia Reames, niece of the bride, wearing a dainty frock of pink net over satin, served as flower girl. She carried a basket filled with pink sweet peas. Master George Edward Reames, nephew of the bride, acted as ring bearer, carrying the ring on a silver tray. The wedding music was rendered by Miss Lucy Wetzel, violinist and Miss Louise Mathews, accompanist, "Traumerel" being played during the ceremony.

Preceding the wedding Miss Annie W-bner of Hickory Withe, sang "At Dawning" and "I Love You Truly". An informal reception was held following the ceremony. In the dining punch was served by Miss Virginia Reeder of Peoria, Illinois, and Mary Mayo, where the guests viewed the many handsome gifts.

The out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Reeder and little daughter Virginia, of Peoria, Illinois; Miss Louise Matthews of Oakland; Miss Annie Weber, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. ## Cultivation Does Wonders For Garden

Cultivating the garden accomplishes other purposes than merely killing weeds, good gardeners realize. For one thing, it forms a surface layer of loose earth, which hinders evaporation, keeps the soil underneath moist. It admits air into the soil, and a well-aerated soil favors the growth of beneficial bacteria and those chemical changes which set plant food free. The surface of most soils should be worked as soon after a rain as it ceases to be sticky. If not worked at this time it tends to harden, or "bake". After the garden becomes well started cultivation should be shallow in order to avoid injuring the roots of the plants which come close to the surface. For best results keep the weeds out and the surface of the ground loose.

Facts and Figures About Our Roads

To The Falcon:—Last year a short time after our present Highway Commission went into office a number of articles were published criticizing the tractor system and the general way in which our road affairs were being conducted. At that time I wrote an article urging that the Commission be given a year to demonstrate to the people just what they could do. They have been in office now for one year and three months, and have had abundance of time to show the efficacy of their system. By their fruits ye shall know them.

I am not a traveler and so do not personally know the condition of any roads except those in my own district. Beyond all doubt our roads are worse than they have been in ten years. Many of them are simply impassable and there is not a good road in the district. The road from Braden to Mason is so fortunately situated that very moderate work will keep it in repair. For the last six months it has been worse than I ever saw it before. More money has been spent for temporary repairs, damages to vehicles, and by un-rubate travelers who "got stuck" than would have been required to work it from end to end if it had been taken in time.

Time after time have we appealed to the Commission but only once has the county outfit paid any attention to pleas for help. The work on that occasion was of no real value as it was only a dressing up instead of a real grading. Our magistrate says that he is sure that this district, No. 6 has not received as much as $1000 from the Commission for roads, bridges, culverts and all in the last year.

Reports from other districts are that their roads are equally bad. A number of taxpayers asked for reductions in their valuation because the public roads were impassable.

The Commission has been in office fifteen months. When they came into office they had $14,600 cash on hand. The 1919 Road Tax amounted to $32,000. $1000 additional has been borrowed and spent and the bank has carried the Commission for $5,385 additional, and now refuses to furnish more money. These figures have been approved by the proper authorities and are reliable. I could not find the amount of the automobile tax, that while supposed to be spent on the roads is not under the control of the Highway Commission. To sum up, the Commission has spent about $62,000 and on public roads are the net result of this expenditure. Are they worth it? Now we are out of money, out of roads, out of patience, out of hope and some few are out of temper. Our present road system has thoroughly demonstrated its ability to spend money and its inability to make roads. It has failed to measure up to the demands of the situation. Some fortunate few have well cared for roads provided for their pleasure but the general mass of contemptible taxpayers get hardly the crumbs that fall from their masters table.

I have no charges of corruption. I do not even suspect graft but public officials must stand or fall by what they accomplish. "He who excuses himself, accuses himself". These men were not chosen to give us roads in halcyon days but in days of storm as well as of sunshine. The outlying districts deserve something. This road money should have been divided with some degree of fairness.

Road employees should have been required to work reasonable hours. Pleasure cars should not have been provided so normally. Dragging outfits should not have been employed to drag roads that were in such a condition that the tractors in some places had to leave the roads and go thru the fields.

Ordinary business judgement and economy should have been used.

If these things had been properly looked after our county roads would not have been a jest to travelers and a shame to its citizens. Let us stop this business. Let us give each District its proper share of road money. Let us interpret the law in a spirit of justice and however much we love the taxpayers let us some times at rare intervals remember the taxpayers.

Gubernatorial Candidate Speaks Here

A half hundred voters last Monday in the chancery court room heard Hon. E. L. Wirt of Cookeville speak in behalf of his candidacy for Governor of Tennessee. His address was aggressive and bold and the disclosures he made about the present administration were eye-openers to many of the listeners who had not heard them before.

Mr. Wirt favors repeal of all absolute laws, non-enforceable laws, etc., and names particularly for repeal the 1919 assessment law, the dog law, the State Manager law, the public utilities act, and favors the abolition of the railroad commission, declaring that he had found but three men in the state who opposed its abolition and they are Enloe, Hannah and Welch, the three present incumbents. He favors repeal of all prohibition legislation in the state, in order that prohibition enforcement may now be left entirely with federal authorities and leave state courts to handle other matters, since the adoption of the federal amendment and the Volstead enforcement measure.

He makes some charges against the present administration that if they are not true and established by absolute testimony would make it unsafe for him personally before and self-respecting individual against whom such charges are made. He charges that a friend of Gov. Roberts offered him $1000 cash if he would withdraw from the race for governor and challenged the governor or any of his friends to deny the charge.

He flayed the operation of the 1919 tax laws and stated it as his opinion that valuations on property are now being made at the inflated values of these abnormal times and the rates were being fixed lower than formerly, but that rate fixing would become a bi-annual affair of the legislature and that each succeeding one would boost the rate until it was where it has been in the past and valuations kept up to the inflated figures. The operation of this law is in the hands of the chief statistician and about fifteen assistants who are given by the law fixed salaries, not less than $10 per day, and an unlimited expense account and he charged that already they have spent $120,000 in salaries and expenses. The law provided that it should go into effect last year, 1919, and he charges that Gov. Roberts and the railroad commission became violators of law when the agreed to suspend the operation of the law until this year, and asked why could not any other executive place unseal such authority.

It is hardly believed that Mr. Wirt made a large number of votes for himself by coming to Fayette county, but he made exposures of the present operation of things that will tell over the state in the coming primaries in August.

Garden Notes

Vegetables in the garden now are at their best and with the rush of other work just at this time there is danger of neglecting the gardens and letting the weeds and grass get the upper hand in it. As the peas give out about now the rows should be cleared of the old vines, thoroughly plowed or dug and snap beans, or corn and running beans, planted in their place. It is time, too, to plant the seed for the last row of tomatoes, so the plants will be ready to go out into the rows early next month. Celery, carrots, salsify, and parsnips should be planted now if not already planted, and a succession of other vegetables kept up.

Seed of Lookout Mountain potatoes for July planting will be scarce and high this season. We sold most of ours recently for eating at a price above $6 per bushel, having only a few left. And we are advising gardeners to watch the vines of the spring crop of Triumphs and when the vines are nearly dead, showing maturity of the tubers, dig them, cut the small ones and plant right back the same day, covering deep. We throw out two furrows with a turning plow, open the water furrow with a shovel deep, plant in this and cover with two furrows with turning plow, and the best stand we ever got we did it this way.

We had our first ripe tomatoes last year on June 10, first roasting ears same day. We are having the first corn today (Thursday) and have not had a ripe tomato yet.

Sweet potato plants may be transplanted until the middle of July with every hope of a good yield. The tubers will not grow as large as the earlier planted but if seasons are good, they will be just as numerous and much smoother and more uniform and many who have tried them prefer it.

The present hot dry spell is very trying on the garden after the too heavy supply of moisture all spring and vegetables are suffering more than they would under ordinary circumstances. To keep the soil well stirred is the best plan of conserving the moisture supply until it rains again.
